CATARACT SURGERY & IOLS: WHAT THE DR. ORDERED?

Land Rover

In true Land Rover style, Fenton combines the very best of British design with retro appeal. Available in an eye size of 51, in black acetate and striated brown, the Fenton features an updated version of the iconic round eye shape and a wrap trim in silver, with custom tips and a premium OBE flex hinge.

Centrostyle

Centrostyle's Active frames for children are made from lightweight, flexible grilamid and feature a centred bridge and co-injection temples with a double curve and rubber inserts. These enable the frame to be correctly positioned on the child's face for limited movement and maximum comfort. Optical centres are maintained, even when the child plays. Use of the silicone frame-locks, supplied with the frame, is recommended.

Humphreys

From street fashion to sneakers, Humphrey's closely follows current European fashion trends. Classic shapes in fine metal are back, including panto and panto with double bridge. These shapes have been updated with stainless steel fronts, spring hinges, and temple tips with a splash of colour.

Anne & Valentin

Ginicester's eyebrow arch is a direct reference to guitar pickguards, and the precise quasi-artisanal details are inspired by the craft of string and electric instrument makers. A genderless panto with arched brow and double bridge, it's the Hi-Fi concept model that rocks the most!

Kliik Denmark

Model K-624 is one of three new styles to be launched by Kliik Denmark. Inspired by the clean, modern aesthetic of Danish design, these edgy frames are perfect for smaller eye sizes. K-624 combines a squared off round shape with a custom lamination, and beveling along the brow and end pieces. Available in vivid hues of cobalt, fuchsia, black, and brown.
